If the period, or time interval, required to complete one cycle or vibration is $1/2$ second, the frequency is 2 per second; if the period is $1/100$ of an hour, the frequency is 100 per hour. In general, the frequency is the reciprocal of the period, or time interval; i.e., frequency = $1/\text{period} = 1/(\text{time interval})$. The frequency with which the Moon revolves around Earth is slightly more than ...
